Report

LIRT officers have been busy planning the upcoming LIRT retreat, which will take place Friday, June 8, 2012 at Transylvania University Library. The retreat will showcase innovative approaches to library instruction and information literacy from around the state and will include speakers from Eastern Kentucky University, Northern Kentucky University, the University of Kentucky, and the University of Louisville.

Instruction librarians have shown strong interest in the retreat, with registration reaching full capacity in just a few weeks. In addition to LIRT officers and presenters, there will be approximately forty retreat participants, including librarians from academic, public, and school libraries across Kentucky.

While LIRT's active members have contributed to various aspects of the planning, special thanks goes to Past Chair Lisa Nichols, who has been in charge of local arrangements at Transylvania. For more information, please see the retreat website:
